

I urge you to limit the number of media outlets that a given corporation can own. Only a few locally-run FM radio stations remain in the Detroit metropolitan area, so I am deprived of hearing local bands, extensive local news coverage, and local DJ's that I can relate to. Most stations play the same limited playlist of songs you are tired of. Furthermore, when a corporation decides to censor what music can be played, e.g. anti-war songs, Dixie Chicks songs, people around the country are deprived of the right to hear songs with diverse viewpoints. If a station is based out of some other state, you have no way of knowing how to contact them to complain about their decisions. Re-regulation of the radio industry will convince me to turn my radio back on and not be forced to rely on my own CD's all the time. I look forward to that day.
